"Recensione ?The Best Pizzeria in America: Tony?s Pizza Napoletana??Larry Olmstead, Forbes Magazine ?[Tony Gemignani] approaches the craft of making pizza dough with the same intelligence and expertise as that of a pro brew master concocting an artisanal ale.??Publishers Weekly ?A cookbook we?re looking forward to this fall??Tasting Table ?One of the most anticipated cookbooks of Il 2014??Eater National ?Tony Gemignani has one jealousy-inducing resume. It's full of phrases like ?World Champion? and ?Best in America.? And get this: it all relates to pizza.??Food Republic?You?ll never look at a pizza the same way again.??Santa Rosa Press Democrat?One-stop shopping for your deepest pizza desires.? ?Mike DeSimone and Jeff Jensen, Huffington Post L'autore TONY GEMIGNANI is the chef and owner of seven restaurants: Tony's Pizza Napoletana, Capo's, and Tony's Coal-Fired Pizza in San Francisco, Pizza Rock in Sacramento and Las Vegas, Tony's of North Beach and Slice House by Tony Gemignani in Rohnert Park. He's also the co-owner of the International School of Pizza in San Francisco. Gemignani has been making pizza for over 20 years and holds an impressive set of awards. But as someone who has devoted more than half of my life to it, I can tell you that, like all really great, really simple things, pizza is infinite. I?m still learning, still refining, still trying to make it even better every single day. And what I can tell you for sure is that pizza doesn?t come down to just recipes or formulas. It?s a craft. That one word?that?s why I wanted to write this book. There are hundreds of pizza books, blogs, and websites filled with thousands of recipes out there. Do we really need another one? I thought about this a lot, and here?s where I ended up: when I teach home cooks and certify chefs and pizzaiolos, it?s less about recipes and more about inspiring people to master the craft of pizza?the techniques, the reasons to choose one ingredient over another, the art of ?reading? the dough as you mix, shape, top, and bake it. Anyone can hand you a pizza recipe, and if that recipe is halfway decent, chances are you can make yourself a perfectly good pizza for dinner tonight in your own kitchen with no special equipment and not much preparation. But that?s not where I want to take you. I want to get you all the way to five-star, killer-pizzeria-quality pizza. I want you to master any style you love?whether it?s Chicago deep-dish or cracker-thin, a big, fluffy Sicilian pan pizza or a classic Neapolitan margherita with that authentic char blistering the edges?right in your own kitchen with whatever oven you?ve got. Is that really possible? Can you actually do all that without a real pizza oven? That?s the question I get asked most often. Believe it or not, you can. It?s not your oven. It?s the ingredients and the techniques you use, and I?m going to give you every piece of ingredient and technique advice you?ll need to succeed. But if you truly want to get all the way to rocking restaurant-style pizza at home, there?s one thing I?m going to ask you to commit to. It?s the motto that runs across the front of my menu, and the three words etched on the door of my restaurants. Hey, I even had it tattooed right onto my hands. Respect the craft. Craft is the difference between good and great. It takes a few extra steps, the right equipment, a little more time, and a fair amount of practice. But if you're up for it, the payoff is golden. So I'm going to start by asking you to try something a little unusual for a cookbook. I want you to read all the way through page 19 before you try a single recipe. And then I'm inviting you to take a Master Class where we make your first pizza together—and maybe even take that class a few more times before you graduate to trying all the great stuff in the rest of the book and eventually coming up with your own variations and improvisations. That's what I mean by respecting the craft and getting a handle on the whys and hows behind it. It might sound a little back-to-schooly. But trust me, it'll be fun. And you get to eat the final exam.
